SCORE ARE SAVED FROM FLOOD WATERS

THREE MORE STEAMERS VICTIMS OF SUBMARINE

Latest Achievements of Teutonic Allies' Boats Causes Consternation in Washington Circles

PRESIDENT HASTENS TO NATION'S CAPITAL

Investigation Makes It Almost Certain Persia Had No Warning and U. S. Consul Is Victim

Three more steamships have been sunk by submarines of the Teutonic allies, according to reports received today from London. These reports coming so soon after the torpedoing of the British steamship Persia, with accompanying big loss of life, have created consternation in Washington, where there had just been established a feeling of relief as the result of the favorable trend of the negotiations with Austria concerning the sinking of the Ancona.

The vessels that today's reports record as having been torpedoed were the British steamships Glengyle and St. Oswald, and the Japanese steamship Kenkoku Maru. So far as has been learned the loss of life was small.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The new international crisis brought on by the Teutonic submarine campaign in the Mediterranean moved forward swiftly today.

President Wilson has cut short his sojourn at Hot Springs, Va., and will leave there tonight arriving in the capital early tomorrow to take personal charge of the situation.

Baron Zwiedinek, charge of the Austrian embassy, assured Secretary Lansing that should it be found that an Austrian submarine sunk the Persia with loss of American lives, his government would promptly give reparation and satisfaction. He asked that judgment be suspended until all the facts are known.

The state department asked Ambassador Penfield at Vienna to make inquiries for information to determine the nationality of the submarine and develop the facts in the case.

ALL INFORMATION.

Consuls and commercial agents in the vicinity of Alexandria were instructed to gather information from the Persia survivors and others which might throw light on the situation.

The fact that the Persia had one mounted gun was disclosed in a dispatch from American Consul Garrels at Alexandria. What effect that will have on the situation, however, cannot be definitely determined until it is known whether the gun was mounted for offense or defense.

HUMAN INTEREST IN OAKLAND'S STORM FLOOD

'LUMBY' CONFESSES TO DAZZLING CAREER

Identified as George Thorne, Villa Leader, Arrested at Portland.

Identification of George Lee Thorne, former general of Villa's rebel army in Mexico, and possessor of a score of aliases as Dr. Charles Lumby, the "Leau Brummel" veterinarian, who is wanted in Oakland and Hayward for passing fictitious checks, has been made in Portland, Ore., where he is under arrest. In his cell the man who posed here as a British nobleman and social war representative of the Allies is said to have confessed to a dazzling career as a forger and as a fraudulent stock broker and promoter.

His wife, Lumby, or "Thorne," says have netted him $25,000 to $50,000, which he has largely dissipated. High life and a flagrant disregard of the niceties of law are responsible for his arrest, he says.

Thorne confesses to the aliases of Dr. Russell Elliott, Dr. Ed. H. Henton, W. A. Troutbridge, August Tilmann, Dr. Johnson Buswell, Lee Baldwin, R. M. Galey, Charles Atkins and Atkins, Charles Atkinson, and numberless others. He admits operating in Portland, Seattle, Los Angeles, Oakland, San Francisco, San Diego, Missoula, Mont.; Lead, S. D.; Cheyenne, Wyo.; Johnston, Pa.; Chicago, and many places.

WANTED IN MONTANA.

At Missoula he opened an office for the "Yellowstone Garden City Corporation," he said. He is wanted there for a $1000 forgery. It is believed. In Seattle in 1911 he admitted he defrauded the Moore Jewelry Company out of $600.

In Chicago he is said to put over a "feud" on the Chicago Wholesale Cooperage Company, getting $800. In Cheyenne, Wyo., as Dr. Buswell, he obtained $1200, he said.

Thorne is a graduate of the Chicago College of Physicians and Surgeons, having been known there as Dr. Henton in 1906. He was a first sergeant with the 12th Cavalry, U. S. A., stationed at Fort Meade and Walla Walla, Wash., he said. In San Diego a few years ago he assumed the personality of August Grunau and started to promote a mining deal for a Miss Margaret Richardson of the East, he said.

KNOWN AS TROWBRIDGE.

MISSOULA, Mont., Jan. 3.—George L. Thorne, under arrest in Portland on forgery charges, was recorded by the Missoula police November 8, as "L. J. Trowbridge," charged with forgery on complaints of several merchants who had cashed small checks for him. The "Yellowstone-Garden City Corporation" had no offices, the police say.

DOCK LABORERS:

ROME, Jan. 3.—By governmental decree, all port and dock laborers have been placed under military control. This action has been taken for the purpose of preventing strikes for higher wages during the effort to dismember the ports of large quantities of merchandise and war materials.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS DROWNING OF WOMAN

Detectives Search for the Man Seen Bending Over Prostrate Body

Troops Buried in Trench by Explosion

BERKELEY, Jan. 3.—The finding made an attack on a wide front north of the road between La Jolla and Belvue yesterday after concluding mining operations on a large scale.

The war office announced today that the occupants of one trench were buried by an explosion or shot down, and that in some other positions the retired troops had been

French artillery on January 1 shelled the town of Lauterbach, in Alsace, the commandment says. One girl was killed and one woman and three children wounded as they were leaving church. On the eastern front the Russians continued their operations with patrols and other small detachments, but without success.

GOES ON ALARMED.

Alarmed by the man's attitude, Bracell continued to the iron works, where he learned later of the discovery of the body and of a suspicion that the woman had met her death by accidental drowning. He then informed the police of the earlier occurrence.

The woman was found lying face down in a three-foot puddle of water, endeavoring to learn the woman's identity or how she reached the place where she was found have been of no value. Throughout the whole neighborhood where she met her death no one could be found this morning to acquaint him with her identity. On the Southern Pacific embankment, a hundred feet away, was found a silver-handled umbrella which she had apparently carried.

There were no marks of violence on her body and the deputy coroner at first believed she came to her death by drowning. She was partly in and partly out of a pool of water, and part of her face was submerged.

HER CLOTHING GOOD.

The woman was about 30 years old, five feet ten inches tall and weighed 110 pounds. She had dark hair, was two gold earrings and was wearing a daily dressed throughout. She wore a blue tailored suit of good material a white turban, brown kid gloves, yellow silks stockings and black shoes.

William Silverfoot of Sixth and Grayson streets noticed her body this morning while on his way to work at the Beron Jackson iron foundry in Emeryville at 8 o'clock. He informed Mrs. Silverfoot, who directed the police to the spot. The place where the woman met her death is about half way from the West Coast

Kalsomine Company at Fifth and Grayson streets and the right of way of the Southern Pacific railroad. The embankment of the latter opposite

Grayson streets showed the marks of footprints on the mud and as if some one had slipped down the bank.

Detective Henry Johnson is conducting a further investigation of the mysterious case.

MORE than two dozen people, for the most part women and children, were rescued from impending death by drowning in homes flooded early this morning by the storms of the past thirty hours, the most severe in twenty-five years, while the city, generally, is suffering from wrecked telephone and telegraph services, impaired street car schedules, late trains, closed schools and a score of other ills due to the wind and the rain.

One man is dead and a score of men, women and children are more or less seriously injured in San Francisco, while the remainder of the state is suffering generally from the effects of the sou-easter. The Sacramento, San Joaquin and Santa Clara valleys are flooded in spots.

Oakland suffered severely at the hands of King Storm. The waters flooded the city hall basement as well as the basements of a score of downtown stores; the fire department was kept busy all night aiding persons to save their effects from flooded houses; Lake Merritt has overflowed its banks and thousands of dollars of damage have been done to ships in the estuary and in the outer harbor; all Southern Pacific, Santa Fe and Western Pacific trains have been delayed by washouts; the Key System ferries were forced to stop operation because the tunnel beneath the Southern Pacific tracks at the waterfront was under twelve feet of water; telegraph, telephone and electrical wires are down in all parts of the city; seven schools are closed because of flooded basements, and all other schools have been temporarily closed because of the storm conditions; trees have been blown down, big sign boards sent to earth, and numerous telegraph and telephone poles splintered by the winds.

RICHMOND CUT OFF.

The street car system in Richmond was demolished for the better part of this morning.

The tunnel at MacDonald avenue was flooded under six feet of water, and the cars could not complete their runs. General havoc was done throughout the city by water and wind.

Throughout Alameda county the havoc was general. Niles

CLUB WOMEN TO SEW FOR SOLDIERS

Many Clubs Renew Activities After the Holiday Season.

ALAMEDA, Jan. 3.—The Adelphian Club opened the year with the sewing bugs in which the European families suffering from the effect of the war will be the benefactors. This will be followed by the regular routine of the association meeting in the Adelphian Section, tomorrow morning being the first.

Thursday afternoon will be Union meeting today, a program prepared under the direction of Miss Clara Alexander for Mrs. Henry Rosenthal, who will be hostess for the day, and will be the attraction. Mrs. Rosenthal will be assisted in directing the meeting by Mrs. A. J. Buerger, president of the club; Mrs. Frank Otto, Mrs. Herman Kraus, Mrs. J. Sherman McDowell, Mrs. Joseph W. Knowland and Mrs. Walter Garrett.

There will be solo songs by Senor Jean Cervi and Senor Raulito Gonzalez, who will play the Spanish music, and with costume dances by little Berlede Brown. A farce comedy, written by Sherrill Schell for Miss Clara Alexander will be presented, with Miss Anna Nunnan and Mrs. George C. Thompson. Nunnan, Dr. J. P. Root, John Brandon of the Berkeley Club, and Henry Lassen of this city in the cast.

MONTHLY BASKET LUNCHEON.

On the January bulletin are the regular basket luncheon and business meeting on the third Monday, and the sewing on the other three Mondays afternoons of the month. The first of the series of dances of the social section will take place on Saturday, January 22, under the direction of Mrs. S. J. Ackerman, curator. Current music events, "only the day with the program," by Mrs. Maurice Jones and others, Miss Gertrude Franklin, president, and the review of Jean Webster's latest book, "Dear Enemy," by Mrs. Walter Littleton. The household art section will meet at the home of Miss Anna C. Clegg, 817 Church street, San Francisco, on Friday, the 21st, to start a popular weaving.

The Womans Club will resume the regular club life next Wednesday with a luncheon and program, to be held at the home of Mrs. Frank Davis. The club, which has Jackson, president, and Mrs. Jackson, treasurer, will have the program of this country, and their speaker, Mrs. Ruth W. Atkinson, is president of the club.

The Alpen Club will be entertained by Mrs. Davis Martin on Friday, January 14, when "The West" will be the subject for the program. The program will be the thousands of Mrs. Will Johnson, Mrs. J. W. Brew and Mrs. Elmer E. Johnson.

The Research Club will have the regular business meeting next Wednesday. The club is carrying out a policy of alternating in its reading between the poetry of this country, and that of England. Mrs. Ruth W. Atkinson is president of the club.

The Shakespear Club will have the regular business meeting of the new year at the home of Mrs. W. B. Van Buren, president of the club. Eleanor Gates' book, "We Are Seven," will be read.

CLUB BUSINESS MEETING.

The Criterion Club will have the regular business meeting next Wednesday. The club is carrying out a policy of alternating in its reading between the poetry of this country, and that of England. Mrs. Ruth W. Atkinson is president of the club.

The Alpen Reading Club will be entertained by Mrs. Davis Martin on Friday, January 14, when "The West" will be the subject for the program. The program will be the thousands of Mrs. Will Johnson.

The Research Club has a program of especial value for meetings on Friday. Monday, "Adoration," will be the subject on January 11, and Albin will speak. Mrs. Ruth W. Atkinson will discuss current events and Mrs. E. E. Hosford will preside.

The Tea Club had an entertaining program this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jackson, 1000 on Bay street, when Mrs. Jackson, president, will speak. A resumption of new books will follow with a half hour of the new couple, Mrs. E. B. Weeks, president, presided and New Year greetings were exchanged.

Richmond Liquor Law is Enforced

RICHMOND, Jan. 3.—Richmond's new liquor ordinance went into effect at midnight of yesterday, and for two days the police supervision has been exercised to see that the 12 o'clock closing provision is enforced. Only the early closing, and the provision relating to the sale of light refreshments, will go into effect on January 1. Boxes must be removed from restaurants on March 1 and the raise in license from $100 to $600 becomes effective on January 3, 1916, as far as I have heard there has been no complaint from the saloons men about the closing and other sections of the ordinance now in effect, said Pat Dunn, proprietor of the Berkeley Club, this morning.

School Teachers Wed on Sly at Vallejo

SAN JOSE, Jan. 3.—Friends of the couple in Santa Clara, Monterey and Fresno counties were surprised to learn, through announcements today, of the secret marriage in Vallejo on September 4 of Miss Mae Bowman, for several years a teacher in San Jose and Monterey county schools, to Julie Cheshire, teacher of manual arts in the Coolings high school.

After a brief honeymoon the couple will make their home in Chalburg. Cheshire is a graduate of the Santa Barbara normal and the University of California.

Daniels Has Faith in Navy Yard's Efficiency

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 3.—Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels paid a tribute to Mare Island navy yard in a letter to the Board of Supervisors today, which answers a communication expressing the satisfaction of San Francisco on the awarding of contracts for the building of a dreadnaught there.

"The record of Mare Island navy yard in construction work," says the secretary, "is such as to justify our confidence, that this greatest contract that they have ever assumed will be executed in a most creditable manner."

MISS MARJORIE BREWER, CLEVER BERKELEY DANCER, WHO ENTERTAINED AT FANCY DRESS PARTY.

BERKELEY, Jan. 3.—Miss Marjorie Brewer, one of the most talented of the younger dancers of this city, presided as hostess this week at fancy dress costume party given at the Bartlett Hotel. The room was prettily decorated in streamers with a gay decked Christmas tree as the central feature.

Fancy dances were given by Miss Lorna Doughty and Miss Marjorie Brewster. Miss Brewster presented dance numbers, including an attractive gypsy dance of her own contriving. Refreshments were served in buffet style.

Women Learn to Cook by Correspondence

BERKELEY, Jan. 3.—Steadily increasing in popularity, according to the professors in charge, are the courses in domestic science which are being given by correspondence by the University of California. Learning to cook by mail has proved one of the most popular indoor sports of California housewives and several hundred are now registered in the correspondence courses.

Selection of foods for the housewife has been the most popular of the several courses offered and has the largest enrollment. Classification of foods, composition and value and their sources and relative cost are taught in the course.

All of the courses are designed to meet the needs of the family and to deal in general and detail with economic problems. Under the direction of Miss Edna Rich much assistance has been rendered in the conduct of the course by the staff and pupils of the Santa Barbara normal school. The courses are under the auspices of the extension division of the university.

Large Attendance at School Opening

ALAMEDA, Jan. 3.—The Alameda public schools opened today for the spring term, and was a large attendance, especially in the higher grades, but the inclement weather cut down the enrollment considerably in the lower grades. It is expected that before the end of the week the enrollment will exceed that of last year.

The Alameda high school attendance was large. The Freshman class is one of the largest that has ever entered the school.

The night school will meet this evening in the Alameda High School, the new branch of the night school will open at the Lonetell school, in the western district this evening. In order to attend the new branch, one will receive instruction to prepare them for obtaining naturalization papers.

MRS. D'AGOSTINI RAVING IN CELL

Alameda Woman Who Shot Husband Laments Fatal Deed.

ALAMEDA, Jan. 3.—An inquest into the death of Marie D'Agostini, a clerk in the San Francisco office of the French-American Steamship company, who was shot and killed by her husband, Jesusita D'Agostini, 21, at 10 o'clock in the branch office. The wife will be the principal witness, she and two little sons, ten and eight years of age, being the only witnesses to the tragedy.

The wife, a Mexican woman, twenty-eight years of age, is now held at the county jail in Oakland. She recently stated that her husband was an Italian.

Money matters caused a quarrel between husband and wife, the latter says. She declared that her husband began to act Saturday night as if he were insane, threatening both herself and the children, and that she obtained the revolver from their bedroom to frighten her husband. The woman avers that she pointed the gun at her spouse and then pointed the gun at her neck and then laid it in his spine.

Mrs. D'Agostini, following the tragedy, called the police to his home at 104 Broadway. Her husband's body was taken to the morgue and she to the city jail in Oakland.

Later she was taken to the county jail in Alameda.

MONDAY EVENING

Pacific Coast League Will Probably Levy Boycott Against Former Federals

Reminiscences of a Veteran Sporting Editor

By MR. MULDOON.

You see a lot of young fellows nowadays writing histories of baseball. But how many of them know from actual experience just what they are writing about?

Two years ago on a visit to Philadelphia I talked with a man who played the game at almost its beginning and whose father could have described perhaps the first game of baseball ever played.

I refer to Alfred J. Reach of the A. J. Reach Company.

Reach will not tell you his age.

He is a fine, stalwart chap, handsome and erect as a soldier in the French army, not very gray-haired yet, a man of clean teeth, bright, ruddy and healthy complexion.

Despite all this, Mr. Reach must be a very old man, for he was playing ball in Brooklyn more than sixty years ago.

The old score books prove this.

I sat in the office of the A. J. Reach Company at Tulp and Palmer streets, in Philadelphia on my last visit there, and Mr. Reach told me in a very few words the history of baseball from its beginning up to the present day—its real history, no made-to-order book.

Reach started out a poor lad in Wilkinsburg, a district then adjoining Brooklyn, New York. Today he is one of Philadelphia's wealthiest and most prominent business men, and he attributes all his success to his early connection with the national game.

To the game, too, he gives credit for his wonderful strength and health in his old age.

Reach was one of the first crop of professional baseball players, the crop which sprang up in and around New York, Brooklyn and Philadelphia in the fifties, nearly seventy years ago.

Perhaps the first real baseball team ever organized was the Olympic Club in Philadelphia, which came into being in 1857.

Reach's father was alive at that time and living at Williamsburg. It was on the open floor, lying across from New York, where he was a little bit of a toot and became an enthusiast.

Andrew Jackson was President when Reach began playing, and he organized a club in the office he occupied at the Jacks, the club's catcher, manager, schemer and everything else.

Reach thought his players should wear a uniform so as to distinguish them from other clubs.

He went to his mother and had her make what was perhaps the first ball set of uniforms ever worn by a baseball club.

When the team needed a ball Reach went from Williamsburg over on the little ferry to New York and coaxed his friend, John Van Horn, into organizing a team on Avenue A, on Avenue, to make a baseball out of the leather scraps from the floor, a ball that would stand the pounding of a good baseball club.

To another friend, a wood turner, he gave the name of the Brooklyn To the surprise of all, the Brooklyn team was scored in this way:

It was in 1857 that the first great series of baseball games was ever played. It was for the friendship between the Club of Brooklyn and the Athletics of Philadelphia.

The opening game of the series was played at Bedford, or what was later Brooklyn on the old Capitoline grounds, on October 15, 1857.

There were 10,000 who paid 25 cents each admission and thousands of others viewed the game, without charge from points of the audience.

The Athletics received two-thirds of the receipts and won the game besides by a score of 27 to 17.

The second game was played on October 22, a week after the first, at Bedford, where 4000 paid $1 each to see the game, while thousands strolled on the course. This time the Athletics won by 31 to 12.

A week later came the deciding game of the series. It was played in Philadelphia, and the game was scored in this way:

THE SINKING OF THE PERSIA.

The friendly relations between the United States and either Austria or Germany may be said to depend upon the toss of a coin on account of the torpedoing of the British liner Persia in the Mediterranean Sea, with danger to, if not the loss of, the life of an American citizen—a consular officer. The news, coming as it did a few hours after the crisis with Austria over the Ancona incident had been safely passed, has caused consternation in official circles as well as among the majority of the American people, who have been hoping our friendship with the central powers would remain unimpaired throughout the war.

Future developments as regards the United States depend upon the simple proposition of whether the Persia was torpedoed after ignoring a warning to stop. If a German or Austrian submarine torpedoed the vessel without warning, or, in case the Persia heeded the warning, without providing for the safety of the passengers, it is to be feared we have reached an impasse in our discussions over submarine warfare with the offending nations. Unofficial reports say no warning was given.

Even while we were exchanging notes with Austria over the sinking of the Ancona the Japanese liner Yasaka was sent to the bottom, and, it is claimed, without warning. If the Persia was attacked in direct violation of those laws and interests of humanity which Austria has just assured the United States she unequivocally endorses, doubt is cast, much against our wishes, upon the sincerity of Austria's given word. This is a very serious stage to be reached in international relations. It nearly always means the complete severance of such relations.

We should therefore await definite and authentic information regarding the details of the sinking of the Persia with complete calm and confidence that if the vessel was sunk in violation of the law and contrary to the assurances our government has received, it was due to some unavoidable error. We believe the government to which the submarine belonged will furnish Washington with information as speedily as possible, for it is hardly conceivable that the act was committed with the knowledge or the approval of the government.

No matter to which group of belligerents in the war our sympathies, if we have any, may go, the issue between the American government and all belligerents over according full protection to the lives of innocent non-combatants is of transcendent importance. The American standpoint is justified by every moral standard and if the mad destructiveness of war is to be prevented from running wild in every neutral sea and land our standpoint must prevail. It has been a year since the first submarine disaster was recorded and much might have been accomplished in the saving of innocent lives if the United States had months ago taken the firm stand displayed in the Ancona case.

GATHERING ATMOSPHERE:

Out of all the speculation regarding the visit to London, Paris and Berlin of President Wilson's Texas friend, Colonel House, the apparently "authorized" story printed in the New York Times seems to describe most accurately the real mission of the confidential envoy. It is not to reprimand our ambassadors in Europe, says the Times, nor to make suggestions for peace overtures, that is taking Colonel House to Europe. The President believes the hour is far distant when it will be appropriate to discuss peace.

The "real" object is to bring about a better understanding in the European capitals of American official attitude on the various subjects of diplomatic negotiations and to return to Washington with a true appreciation of the sentiment prevailing abroad regarding the United States for the special benefit of the President. It has been suggested that if, for example, Germany could talk directly into the ear of the Washington government without letting the world hear much misapprehension that has embarrassed negotiation would be dissipated. The same thing applies to the other governments.

So the amiable Colonel has been selected to take the "atmosphere" of Washington to Europe and bring home in exchange the "atmosphere" of Paris, London and Berlin. Abnormal conditions in the cable service make it impossible for most promising, indeed, the President to talk in strict confidence to the European rulers; hence Colonel House, Private Messenger of State. Mr. John Lind of Minnesota was a failure as such in Mexico, so far as the public knows.

This is an important position and possesses most astonishing possibilities. The confidential emissary may be able to render high service to the government. All former presidents have failed to recommend and Congress has neglected formally to create such an office, and in the light of these omissions the President may be justified in placing the government's important foreign affairs in the hands of a friend. Perhaps our ambassadors abroad are not quite up to the standard of ability and discretion Mr. Wilson requires—although Mr. Gerard has performed his duties at Berlin with conspicuous success; Mr. Penfield at Vienna has delivered personally, and textually, Mr. Lansing's notes, and Mr. Page at London is not known to have committed any unpardonable blunder. As one New York paper suggests, however, Mr. Page occupies a very difficult position. He often has added to his other official duties that of purchasing agent and it may be that he has displeased Mrs. George T. Marye at Petrograd and Mrs. Frederick Courtlandt Penfield at Vienna in the selection of a hat or a supply of engraved note paper.

But Colonel House is not to concern himself with Mr. Page specially and the idea sticks that an official of the State Department, say one of the assistant secretaries—Mr. William Phillips or Mr. Edward T. Williams, both trained diplomats—would have been a happier selection. If Colonel House is unusually gifted with the faculty of obtaining information, as one friend urges in his behalf, it is a simple matter formally to appoint him a government representative. In this way he represents the nation and is accountable to it. It has been generally understood, there being no complaint to the contrary, that the President is adequately provided with facilities for administering his office to the best public interest, and the American government, traditionally frank in all its dealings, especially has never felt the need of a private, confidential emissary to foreign governments. But we seem to be falling into dark and shady ways, where rubber heels and false mustaches are worn, and "state secrets" abide in the pockets of Tom, Dick and Harry.

MAKING SOLDIERS AT U. C.

The University of California is contributing to the military preparedness of the country, such as it is, in a notable degree. The inspectors of the war department rank it among the ten universities and colleges in the country where military training is given distinguished for efficiency in this branch of education. During the last semester 1364 students of the freshman and junior years received practical and theoretical instruction in military science.

When these students are added to the number of graduates who have, within recent years, received instruction the university is found to have prepared a large number of citizens efficiently to participate in the defense of their country in an emergency. In this unostentatious, semi-private way the educational institutions of the country are making up to a valuable extent the deficiency in the professional army. Should the scheme for a volunteer "continental army" fail through apathy on the part of a sufficient number of the young men of the nation to equip themselves as efficient soldiers, as we fear it will, these college-trained soldiers will be the nation's biggest asset should we be required to take up arms against an invader.

The universities that include military training in their curriculum are gradually building up and maintaining a class of men from which material may be drawn to properly officer a great volunteer force. In this they are assisting to provide for national security when other projects fail. At the same time, students are being better equipped for the ordinary vocations of private life. They are made stronger physically, and trained in resourcefulness and discipline. Nothing is lost and much is gained. Opportunity should be given every boy attending an educational institution supported or aided by the state to equip himself to meet the call to national service if he is needed. It is an individual patriotic duty to prepare.

Lord W. Waldorf Astor, former American citizen, voluntary expatriate, was given the title and rank of a peer of Great Britain by King George, among the New Year's favors he dispensed to men and women who have served the kingdom with distinction. No one in America begrudges Lord Astor his new honors, because America has no honor for him. Henry James has forsaken the land of his birth for the one holding his greater sympathies. A Philadelphia Drexel declared in Europe the other day America is a rotten place in which to live. A New York brewer's widow, now married to a titled Italian, has just given two million dollars to an Italian war auxiliary. We hope all these and others of their kind find a congenial reward.

The heavy fall of rain and snow in the mountains presages abundant irrigation for the valleys, and consequent bountiful harvests of grain and fruit for California. Nature is turning to with a will to make the year one of record for prosperity, and nature is being seconded by man. Prospects commercial and political are

NOTES and COMMENT

"Seattle and Tacoma have earth shocks." The lid went up at 12 m. on the last day of the year, but it oughtn't to have been a shock.

Twenty-five factories started or made enlargements in this county during the year just ended and the prospect for this year is brighter yet.

They have had a "dry" raid already in Portland. A club was the offender. They lost no time in defying the law in Westfootland.

A good many of the peace tourists are finding Denmark just as Hamlet did. Denmark's refusal to let them perform in that country is the undoubted cause.

It does not seem to have been generally taken into account that this is Leap Year. But it is for a fact, and those who hope to find advantage in it have nothing to do but to "go to it."

The report is that Bryan is skeptical as to Democratic success at the next election. He isn't running party affairs, which, of course, argues failure right off.

The pastors of this city have started a "war" on divorce. It is rather a big engagement, but if dragons are to be slain a start must be made somewhere.

The man who stole a gas engine and pump must be a brother to the purloiner of the traditional redhot stove; but when he returns them, as he did in Berkeley, he is entitled to a higher rating.

The Kaiser declares that with the help of Omnipotence his cause will succeed. Omnipotence is being appealed to from the other side also, and so far there doesn't seem to be any favorites.

Our Eastern friends whose chiefest holiday event was a blizzard are respectfully referred to the photographs that have been taken of crowds sporting in the surf on New Year's day at San Francisco's ocean beach and also at the Alameda beach.

A San Francisco man who, being refused a drink, started a disturbance in a saloon and was fatally shot, affords a most telling kind of temperance sermon—the kind that induces conservative citizens to vote the way they did in seven states recently.

The San Diego Exposition reopened Saturday for another long and interesting season, during which it is bound to do much to give wider publicity to the attractions of California for health, pleasure, profit and rest.

"Food instead of cash for indigents" is the heading to a piece of Richmond news. That will seem reasonable to everybody except the indigents who have formed the habit of receiving money and who may feel greatly outraged at this abridgment of their rights."

Not only is booze forbidden in the state of Washington, but it is against the law to sell or circulate publications containing liquor advertisements. These laws sometimes fail because zealots succeed in getting features in them that are irksome to those who are not unfriendly to the malus object aimed at.

Los Angeles has become so testy with film companies that they are threatened to come up and locate in the vicinity of Oakland and San Francisco. The southern city fears called upon to regulate the movie men not only as to their morals but as to their methods.

It is not so easy to picture the President of the United States as a hiker—and especially the President's new wife. Yet that is the way they are constantly referred to in the dispatches, same as though they were a squad of Philippine scouts. What the President and Mrs. Wilson do, probably, is to indulge in pedestrianism.

PROGRESSIVES RETURNING.

It goes without saying that the Progressives in large numbers are returning to the Republican Party. The reason is plain. The split of 1912 was wholly responsible for the election of Wilson. His administration has given the country a dangerous near-free trade tariff; direct taxes; so-called war taxes to make up deficits in the Treasury; a Mexican policy which long been disgusting and degrading; a policy which has utterly refused to protect American citizens unless it be on the high seas, and even then it has been weak as witness the still unsettled Tarantula crime.

The country is facing the future. There is a national spirit abroad which demands that the lives and property of United States citizens shall be safeguarded. There is fear for the business of the nation after peace shall be restored in Europe. What is to happen when the cheap goods of Germany, bartered from England and France, are dumped upon our wharves; and what when the cheap products of England and France likewise seek a market here?

There is but one known way to meet such an invasion and maintain our own bulk, and that is through a protective tariff.

Progressives understand this. The next President must be either Wilson or a Republican, hence the very evident desire of Roosevelt that a third party movement may be avoided in the coming campaign.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

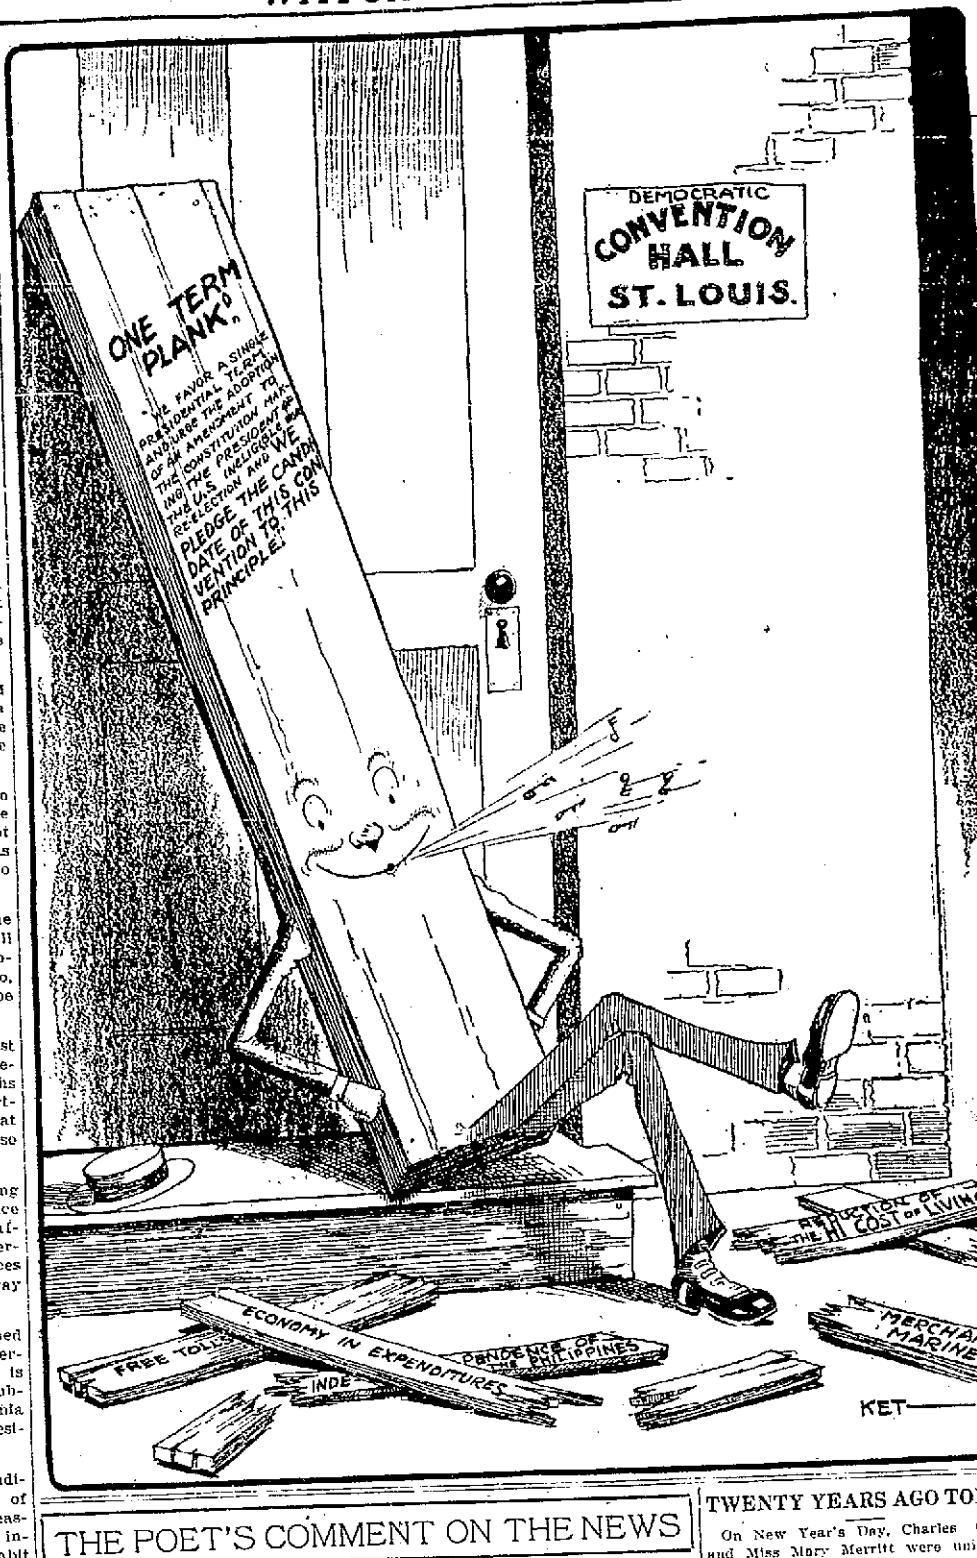

PROPHETS OF SELF-SACRIFICE.

The Bishop of Hereford is in the field again, this time with a beautifully worded demand that we should all be self-sacrificing and give up smoking. The appeal, I confess, arrested the after-breakfast match on its way to my after-breakfast pipe—till I discovered that the Bishop is not himself a smoker. How grateful we ought to be to our vigorous prophets of self-sacrifice.—London Evening Standard.

THE SCHEMERS:

S. S. McClure says that a week aboard the fortably changed him from a pacifist to a militarist. Maybe the whole idea was a scheme of the preparedness party.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

WATCHFUL WAITING

THE POET'S COMMENT ON THE NEWS

(No man will arm himself unless he means to attack. Even when he takes a fork in his hand or is preparing to attack an oyster or a beefsteak.—Henry Ford.)

"To arms!" the oyster shrieked his plea;
"To arms!" he vented loud his plight;
"To arms!"—the rest, ah, was me—
Was lost in Henry's appetite.

"To knives! To forks!" the cry was heard
The beefsteak shivered in his lair.
What happened next? You are referred To Colonel Roosevelt's bill of fare.

"Nothing is so youth-giving as occupation"—Lillian Russell to vaudville audience.)

"You're wondrous fair!" 'Tis thus I wo—
You're thirty-five and youthful, too.
Pray tell me what it is you do."

"I chop the wood,"

"She shyly said,
"I make the fire,
Likewise the bed;
Wet down the lawn,
Bring in the hay,
Hitch up the team."

My heart filled up with doubts and fears,
"Hold! Say no more!" I said, in tears,
At that rate you're but sixteen years."

(Who do you think the Republicans will dominate?" was asked of William Jennings Bryan. "I hope it will be their weakest man," was the reply.)

Bill Bryan, oh, Bill Bryan
Will you seek another term

As President-in-prospect
Of your Uncle Samuel's firm.

"That all depends," Bill Bryan said,
"Who rides the pachyderm."

Three times a day,
I get the meals
For twenty-two;
Sweep up the house,
Clean out the flue.
I mend the sox,
Sew up the rents
For five small boys
And several girls.
What other things
I do, my dear,
Are far too much
To mention here."

There's William's father likewise,
Can find a thing or two;

For instance, something always

For little Bill to do;

He finds he's short of money

And oft that fix he loathes;

But youth's William's father

Can never find his cap!

It seems the lot of men folks

To seek for something, still

They cannot find—this simply

Their cup with will fill.

To see where they put it

They think a dreadful task—

Indeed, it's much too dreadful

For anyone to ask.

FRIENDSHIP FOR SWISS.

A pleasant incident illustrative of international friendship was the dedication in Switzerland on Tuesday of the Woodrow Wilson soldiers' home, a portable shelter and equipment for Swiss soldiers guarding their frontier, amid the perils of a mountain winter. The "home" is one of three given by Americans in Switzerland at a cost of $6000. The other two will bear the names of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. The two republics have much in common just now as staunch neutrals, succeeding amid dangers.—Springfield Republican.

GOING AWAY TO RETURN.

Theodore Roosevelt's projected trip to the West Indies next spring was the subject of considerable comment in political circles today. His return from the trip two months before the Republican National convention is confidently expected to be in the usual manner of Roosevelt—surprise.

On January 28 the Colonel will talk to his followers in Philadelphia. On February 12 he will speak at a Lincoln Day dinner in Chicago. He plans to sail on February 14 for a six-weeks' trip through the West Indies, returning probably the first week in April.—New York Evening Post.

HOW HE GOT EVEN.

A busy housewife came into the sitting room with a determined look in her eyes.

"I really shall have to punish those children," she began.

"What have the little beggars been up to now?" asked the father, looking up from his newspaper.

"Why, they've made a mess of my sewing room," explained his wife. "Needles, reels of cotton, scissors—everything has been hidden away in the most unexpected places. It is really exasperating."

Her husband laid down his paper and smiled benignly.

Special Session to Solons

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 3.—Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan yesterday began sending out official notification to the 120 members of the California Legislature that the special session called by Governor Johnson would convene here Wednesday. The first of the legislators are expected to arrive in town tomorrow for conference on the course which legislation will take.

Careful study of the governor's call by State officials of all shades of political opinion developed that the State will register under the non-partisan law passed by the last legislature. This law, contrary to general belief, will not be amended. The direct primary law, passed in 1913, and the Presidential law, passed by the last legislature, will be amended to conform with the non-partisan registration measure.

It was pointed out by administration officials that this was the only practicable way of remedying the tangle into which the laws had fallen through the referendum successfully invoked upon two of the non-partisan measures passed by the legislature in 1913. Should the non-partisan registration measure be changed to conform with the primary laws, the amended measure will not go into effect until some time in April, thus preventing party registration until that time. This, it was said, would only make the middle worse.

TO MAINTAIN LINES. It was claimed the present course would maintain party lines and at the same time would solve the registration puzzle.

The legislature has no choice in the laws which shall come up for amendment, as the constitution limits the action of the legislature to the measures set forth in the call of the governor.

The proposed amendments in the primary laws will not disturb party lines in any way. The registration being non-partisan primary laws will be changed to read that all spheres of nominating petitions must declare themselves to be affiliated with the party to which the candidate belongs. At the primary election each voter will declare his party before the election officials and will then be given the ballot of that party.

TO DECLARE PARTY. This system is now in effect in several Eastern states, notably Wisconsin.

Owing to the probable shortness of the special session of the legislature, Secretary of the Senate Edwin F. Smith, and Chief Clerk of the Assembly L. B. Mallory announced last night that the number of officers and attaches will be limited in the senate to the secretary and two assistants, minuscule clerks, and one assistant, sergeant-at-arms and two assistants, chaplain and postmaster; and in the assembly to the chief clerk and the officers similar to those enumerated in the senate. If necessary there will be two or three additional clerks for each house, who will be selected from eligible residing in or near Sacramento.

Shorthand

The Ilse Shorthand Institute is now enrolling students to begin in January. The Institute has been established for over fifteen successful years and conducts its work in a quiet, dignified and unusually efficient manner that appeals to the best class of young women who aspire to the better office positions.

The day course is limited to young women who are taught by the small group method with a large degree of individual guidance.

Refined surroundings with splendid equipment.

Course includes shorthand, typewriting, office training, commercial correspondence, and bookkeeping if desired.

Our recommendations are the many graduates holding positions in leading banks, civil service and business firms.

END COMES FROM OVERWORK
SUPREME COURT, IN HONOR TO MEMORY,
ADJOURNEDSecretary Franklin K. Lane
May Be Appointed to Vacancy.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Arrangements are being made today for the funeral of Joseph Rucker Lamar, associate Justice of the Supreme Court, who died at his home here last night of cerebral heart failure. He was 55 years old and had been on the supreme bench for five years.

Following custom, the court, after meeting today, adjourned immediately in respect to the memory of the late Justice.

It was believed here today that because of the important cases now awaiting consideration before the full court, President Wilson would make an appointment to fill the vacancy caused by Justice Lamar's death. Last fall, when Justice Lamar's health became impaired and when a movement was started to retire him on full pay, Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane and Solicitor General John W. Davis were mentioned in discussion as his possible successor.

HEART GRADUALLY FAILED.

The immediate cause of death was gradual heart failure, hastened by inflammation of one of the lungs, which had threatened to develop into pneumonia. The attending physician declared, however, that the primary cause was overwork due to the arduous duties of a member of the Supreme Court and as commissioner to the United States in 1914 to the mediation conference between the United States and Mexico at Niagara Falls.

CONTRACTED COLD.

Exhausted by last year's term of court, Justice Lamar went to White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., in September, where a clot in an artery caused him to lose the use for a time of his left arm and leg. It was some time before he recovered from this attack, but when he returned to Washington in October he planned to return to his work on the bench in February.

About a week ago the justice contracted a cold. His weakened heart was unable to bear the added burden of this inflammation.

CONDITION WAS CRITICAL.

About 9 o'clock yesterday morning his condition was noted to be critical. The court had ceased to throw off the normal poisons. In the afternoon, after recognizing his wife and two sons, Phillip and William, he dropped off to sleep. Gradually his breathing respiration grew less frequent, until at 8:30 o'clock last night he gave a long sigh as of relief and was dead.

Arrangements were made during the day for simple funeral services about 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at the church in Augusta, Ga., attended for years by the Lamar family.

Chief Justice White and other supreme court justices will attend. No services will be held in Washington. After paying tribute to Justice Lamar, the Justice White adjourned court until Thursday.

Decisions to have been announced today will be delivered next Monday.

Inability to summon the justices to go to Georgia led the court to appoint a committee consisting of Justice Vandenberg, Pitney and McReynolds to represent it at the funeral.

Had Justice Lamar lived until this noon he would have completed five years of service on the Supreme Court bench.

FUNERAL OF VETERAN.

Funeral services for Michael Jenessey, Grand Army veteran, who passed away last Saturday at his home, 1818 Thirty-third avenue, were held this morning from St. Elizabeth's church, Fruitvale. He was 74 years of age and a member of the Grand Army. Until ten years ago the defendant had been a rancher in the Moraga valley. His death was due to a stroke of apoplexy.

GOOD FELLOW APPEAL.

The Tribune on Saturday and again yesterday appealed to the Good Fellows of Oakland in behalf of five hundred little children in the public schools who lacked good shoes and sufficient clothing. If their need was great before, it has become all the more dire because of the present storm.

Dr. N. K. Foster, health director of the public schools of Oakland, is authority for the statement that there are five hundred children in this city who are suffering because they are poorly clad and ill shod. Illness and death stalks on the trail of little children whose shoes admit the rain and dampness; little girls with only a cheap undershirt and no overcoat to protect them from the cold; little boys who bravely try to hide the mystery that blue cheeks and hands can not conceal.

AND WARM CLOTHING

The TRIBUNE on Saturday and again yesterday appealed to the Good Fellows of Oakland in behalf of five hundred little children in the public schools who lacked good shoes and sufficient clothing. If their need was great before, it has become all the more dire because of the present storm.

The following letter, which came this morning, is self-explanatory.

"Editor Good Fellow Dept., TRIBUNE,
Dear Sir and Friend: In answer to your kind letter to us this new year's day with $100 bill enclosed, May I say that I should so love to be able to let all the kind people know how thankful we are for their kind remembrance. We are not overcautious to protect them from the cold; little boys who bravely try to hide the mystery that blue cheeks and hands can not conceal.

If this clothes appeal to us, our own wardrobe mistress will sort and arrange them, and the nurses of the public school department may take children to the TRIBUNE school wardrobe department and properly outfit them.

In case you have not the clothes on hand and still desire to assist in the work, checks will be accepted and the money applied for the repair of the clothes and shoes that are sent in.

As in other Good Fellow work, there will be no publicity involved either to donor or recipient.

No one may claim clothing from the TRIBUNE without an order from the medical department of the public schools.

The following letter was received this morning:

"Oakland, Calif., Jan. 2, 1916.
Editor TRIBUNE,

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 3.—William Thompson fell off an express wagon Saturday, was taken to the Park Emergency Hospital and then to his home, 28 Fourth street. This morning he developed symptoms of a fractured skull and died at the Central Emergency Hospital.

WOMAN KNOCKED DOWN.

Miss Helen Ramamo, of Pleasanton, was struck by an automobile driven by P. L. Morell at East Fourteenth street and Nineteenth avenue last night while she was waiting with friends to board a street car. The young woman was knocked down and sustained painful lacerations and bruises.

Miss Ramamo asked Morell, who was driving an automobile listed as the property of the Meek estate of Hayward, to take her to the Southern Pacific Company station, but as he was disengaged to do so, her friends took her to their home at 1238 Ninety-fourth avenue.

Miss Ramamo was knocked into a puddle.

PRODUCE MARKET
AT STANDSTILL

Light stocks and short business prevailed this morning in the local wholesale produce markets. The storm caused a complete cessation of trade, nearly every line. Prices were unchanged, although a general stiffening of the market is evident.

Reports from the south indicate that the damage to the citrus crop was light and that increases in prices of oranges were not probable unless further loss resulted from the wind.

Potatoes may be higher, in fact are being held a trifle firmer already, though there are no changes in the quotations.
